Weekly News

Dear Parents and Carers,

Another busy week. Here are the highlights:

• Last Monday, on the 15th January, World Religion Day was celebrated but we were unable to carry out some of our plans for that day owing to time so, this week, we began our look at religions followed by families in our community. This week, Mr Jarral came into school

- to talk to our Year 2 children about Islam and what the religion stands for. It may have been a little 'over their heads' but your children were polite and inquisitive. A big thank you to Mr Jarral for sharing his faith with us and why it's so important to him and his family. In the following weeks, we'll be inviting several members of our school families to come in and talk to the children about how their religion impacts their daily lives. Thank you in advance to all of you who have volunteered.
- On Wednesday, all your children will have had a couple of visitors in their classes watching part of their writing lessons. We have implemented a new handwriting style and we were keen to get into classes and see how the children were getting on with it. It's the continuous cursive style and it's beautiful. I can confirm that the children love it and are making incredible progress with it. Wait till you see their books on Parents' Evening - you'll be astounded!
- Ms Batt's class (4A) were treated to a visit from Mrs Boyes and myself for their writing lesson. My favourite moment of the year so far occurred when Miss Batt was asking children to spot 10 deliberate mistakes she had made in her writing. Knowing that the children's most prevalent mistake in their own writing was their lack of capital letters, Miss Batt deliberately littered her writing with lower case letters where there should have been capitals. As she worked through the text, she came to the 5th missing capital letter and a voice from the back of the class (Yaid) grumbled loudly, "Oh no, not this again!" Without skipping a beat, Miss Batt turned to the class and retorted, "Now you know how I feel!" I'm going to dine out on that anecdote for years!!!

- Y4 visited the Victoria & Albert Museum this week to study art in all its various forms. Now, I don't know if you've ever visited the V & A museum but it's what I would call one of the more 'high-brow' museums and, when you visit, there's a very hushed atmosphere. I'm pretty confident with the behaviour of our children now, that I can trust them to behave in a 'cultured' manner appropriate to the venue they're visiting but my concerns were heightened when (and I know you'll appreciate my fears when I tell you this), I discovered that our pupils would be studying an array of artistic statues celebrating the human form!!! Yep I need the emojii with my hand on my forehead again!! Well, of course, I gave our pupils a little heads up and asked them to be really grown up and try to approach the statues and busts (no pun intended!) with a calm and mature attitude. And guess what? They actually did!! My pride knows no bounds our children didn't giggle at the rude body bits!! On the educational side, the visit was a great success as part of their 'Ancient Art' topic but maybe we'll reassess the choice of venue for next year!!!.
- The drawing (writing) club continues to delight in EYFS. This week Ashton (R1) was adamant that the biggest number ever would be created if he added 99 to a quadrillion but, when asked if he was certain about that, he hesitated for a moment before stating, "Just let me go home and check with my dad!"
- R2, on the other hand, were set the task of designing a disguise for the Big Bad Wolf. Musa suggested 'headphones' to hide his big ears, Jude suggested 'gloves' to conceal his sharp claws while Parker demonstrated how wearing a scarf could camouflage his big teeth and long nose. The biggest problem was how to hide the wolf's tail. The whole class was stumped until Zoe piped up, "Erm, Mrs Swain, I know what we can do." Everyone turned to Zoe who confidently declared, "Just don't draw the tail then we won't have to hide it!" Genius idea!!!!
- And that brings us to the end of this week's newsletter. It just remains for me to wish you a happy weekend - Saturday is Chocolate Cake Day and Sunday is International Lego Day - that sounds like my kind of weekend!! And I leave you with this thought:

"Every day may not be good... but there's something good in every day."

With kind regards and best wishes,

Do you know that Minecraft, Roblox and Fortnite are not as safe as you might think? Do you know by restricting the 'chat' in games, this does not stop your child talking to other people?

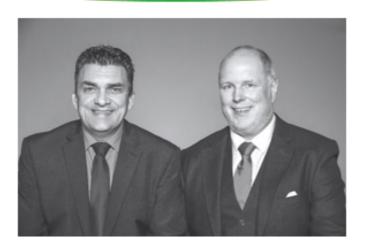

Do you know that having the wrong settings on your Social media apps can expose your young person to grooming or put them at risk from Bullying?

Do you know how gang culture and radicalisation online affects your child?

Do you know that self-generated images are now common among children in Primary School Years across the county?

Do you know what media sources your child forms their opinions from?

Do you know how to keep your child safe and show them the wonders of our digital world?

'The 2 Johns' will open your eyes to a world we, as adults, didn't grow up in.
Your child is growing up within and into this digital age.
